vision and time is a wake up call for africans and people of goodwill that the academic enterprise cannot continue knowledge creation with a business as usual attitude there has to be a major transformation of the intellectual perspectives regarding africa and africans in the 21st century this revised edition of 1995's vision identity and time explores the relationship of a geoculturally based africa centered paradigm in the emerging global village of the 21st century this text argues that perceptions of world history in a multicultural world require the acceptance of multiple perspectives the book distinguishes between hegemonic and non hegemonic perspectives discusses the significance of early nile valley culture and outlines frameworks of analysis using examples of african american history and south african history vision and time is illustrated with diagrams and maps that explain complex developments this is a book that enables social science practitioners to meet the challenges of a diverse global village of the 21st century this book is part history part political analysis and part memoir it is an intensely personal book about what has changed in california over the last quarter century memory and the impact of political transformation in public space explores the effects of major upheavals wars decolonization and other social and economic changes on the ways in which public histories are presented around the world examining issues related to public memory in twelve countries the histories collected here cut across political cultural and geographic divisions at the same time by revealing recurring themes and concerns they show how basic issues of history and memory transcend specific sites and moments in time a number of the essays look at contests over public memory following two major political transformations the wave of liberation from colonial rule in much of africa asia and central and south america during the second half of the twentieth century and the reorganization of eastern europe and the former soviet bloc beginning in the late 1980s this collection expands the scope of what is considered public history by pointing to silences and absences that are as telling as museums and memorials contributors remind us that for every monument that is erected others including one celebrating sri lanka's independence and another honoring the unknown russian soldier of world war ii remain on the drawing board while some sites seem woefully underserved by a lack of public memorials as do post pinochet chile and post civil war el salvador others run the risk of diluting meaning through overexposure as may be happening with israel s masada essayists examine public history as it is conveyed not only in marble and stone but also through cityscapes and performances such as popular songs and parades contributors james carter john czaplicka kanishka goonewardena lisa maya knauer anna krylova teresa meade bill nasson mary nolan cynthia paces andrew ross daniel seltz t m scruggs irina carlota silber daniel j walkowitz yael zerubavel in the cross of christ in african american christian religious experience piety politics and protest demetrius k williams examines and explores the ideational importance and rhetorical function of cross language and terminology in black religious experience through an ideological lens williams argues that for the first time in christian history the european nation of portugal under the guidance of prince henry used the theology of the cross to justify and sustain an exclusive trade of sub saharan african peoples claiming that jesus died on the cross only to save lost souls provided a convincing rationale for henry s exploratory voyages of discovery to west african to exclusively enslave black bodies with the confirmation of catholic popes and the competition of other european nations this same rationale would inspire empire building colonization and slave trading justified on their newly constructed ideological narrative of compassionate evangelism to save lost souls over time with massive conversions to the faith of their enslavers black people s christian religious experiences would articulate a response to the world that held them in thrall that response would be articulated most consistently and effectively through their understanding of the cross of christ williams affirms howard thurman s claim that by some amazing but vastly creative spiritual insight the slave undertook the redemption of a religion that the master had profaned in his midst
